

A Model of Biomimicry in Action

This systems diagram highlights the role Biomimicry plays in reducing consumption of natural resources, restoring species diversity, and enhancing efforts to save natural habitat. Adding to this model economic and social elements reveals many more positive effects from using nature as a guide for designing products, services, and processes.

